

Northstar Electronics Update, September 19, 2016

We have previously stated that Northstar's subsidiary, Northstar Sealand Enterprises Limited (NSEL), is working to secure from an international aerospace company the rights to one of their airplanes. The turbo prop single engine commercial airplane has a long history of high, reliable performance, primarily in the agriculture industry and also in forest fire fighting. The latest version has new design features which will place it at the forefront. NSEL, as the owner, would be the company introducing the upgraded airplane to the marketplace.

Since the last update, NSEL has made solid progress with the aerospace company. The negotiations are going well and we believe we are close to resolutions of the remaining outstanding terms.

With an agreement in place, NSEL plans to initiate its primary activities including an active marketing campaign to introduce the new version of the airplane to high prospect areas internationally.

During the past quarter, we filed Northstar's June 30, 2016 quarterly 10Q report to the SEC.

We are currently working to raise working capital. Funds raised will go primarily towards finalizing the anticipated agreement to purchase the rights to the airplane, further development of NSEL's marketing program and meeting NSEL's ongoing operational needs. In addition, Northstar Electronics plans to create a new public awareness program, continue to meet our public company disclosure requirements and continue to enhance the plans for our post agreement activities. Management focuses on raising working capital through non-dilutive methods.
